

Welcome to the Asset Management Council

About Us

The Asset Management Council is a Technical Society of Engineers Australia, the peak body for all engineering disciplines.

Operating as a non-profit organisation, the Asset Management Council is committed to the promotion and education of optimal asset management practices in industrial, commercial, academic and government organisations.

The Asset Management Council offers:

Individual and Corporate Membership

Signing up for Membership is easy and provides significant benefits including:

- priority access to events and publications;
- notification of services and events;
- substantial price discounts; and
- Member only access to technical resources.

Membership is available for individuals, and organisations in three corporate membership levels; bronze, silver and gold.

Certification

The first of its kind on a global scale, the Asset Management Certification Scheme has been introduced by the Asset Management Council to improve the asset management profession, and provide a career path for asset management professionals nationally and internationally. It is a four level scheme based upon an individuals demonstrated attainment of competencies in the workplace.

Global Forum on Maintenance and Asset Management (GFAMM)

Co-founded by the Asset Management Council and organisations in the Americas, Europe and the Arabian Gulf, the GFAMM major objective is to share collaboratively collected advancements, knowledge and standards in maintenance and asset management to the community. The first symposium is scheduled to take place during Iberian American Congress, November 2009, Buenos Aires, Argentina.

Asset Management Awards

The Asset Management Awards measures an organisation's continuous improvement in the ongoing management of its physical assets. The Awards, held during the annual ICOMS conference, provide organisation's a pathway for optimal asset reliability and revenue consistency.

Networking and Technical Information across Australia

Access to technical information and networking is provided at technical meetings, seminars and workshops and at more than 10 Chapters around Australia. The Asset Management Council also has an online forum where professionals are invited to contribute by posting and reading topics related to asset management.

Publications

To keep professionals up to date with the latest asset management news, the Asset Management Council provides members and the broader community with monthly newsletters, a website and annual conference proceedings. Members also receive The Asset Journal, a quarterly magazine providing the most recent maintenance management and asset management information.

Training

The Asset Management Council offers a one day Fundamentals Training Program across Australia, providing participants with a broad understanding of how their organisations can benefit from optimal asset management systems. The course also offers attendees the opportunity to learn valuable concepts and principles of asset management framed by the asset capability model.
